Research Library

July 1, 2008 - June 30, 2009

Research Library is a database of U.S. magazines and journals. From current news to historical events--from scholarly endeavors to popular culture--Research Library provides in-depth information on virtually any topic. Research Library is suitable for students and scholars whether they are online novices or professional researchers. Natural language searching, database segmenting, alerting services (being notified when additional content of interest is available), and conceptual smart searching are just a few of the features that help users find the exact information they need quickly and easily. Research Library comprises abstracts and indexing for articles in more than 2,400 periodic as well as current coverage of articles from The New York Times and The Wall Street Journal. Coverage Dates: 1971-present.
